

I live in a country which is really independent in this global world.

That means we can do as we want to some extent without worries of being bullied.

That also means we are politically on the incorrect and/or non conformant side like a maverick.

So the result is that if anyone wants to send money. They cannot send it directly to my bank account.

The fastest way is for me to send them an invoice so the KYC/AML/OECD/UN/US/NATO/FATF freaked out banking system can accept the payment without fear of being fined for taking the payment.

I shall be opening an account in the SCO/Asia/CCCP banking system and see if things are not so freaked out there. I am expecting a QR code to be provided and anyone can send without any fines to the banks involved in the transaction. And the transaction taking seconds from start to finish.
